

A photograph of a classroom with students sitting at their desks, looking down at books or papers, suggesting a lecture or study session. The room has a light green wall and a large window in the background. The students are mostly young men, some wearing headscarves, and are seated at rows of wooden desks with metal frames. The floor is made of light-colored tiles.